

How to Draw a Penguin

You need: a pencil, an eraser, black crayons or a dark pen, plain paper

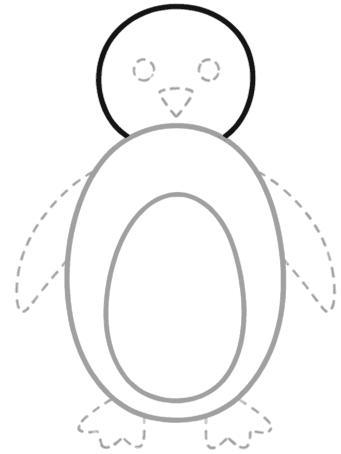

1. Draw the body

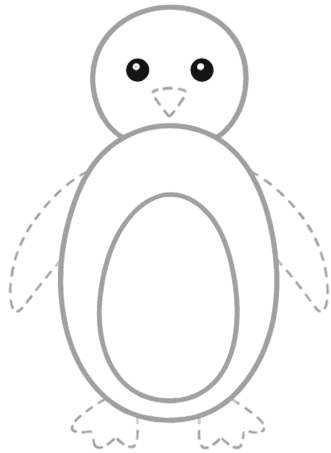

2. Add the tummy

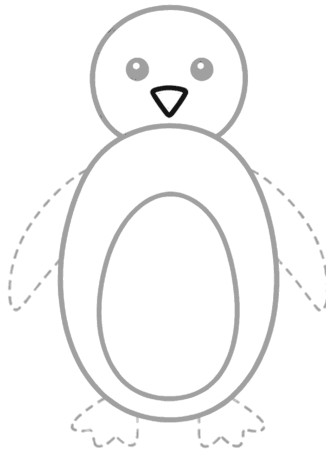

3. Draw the head

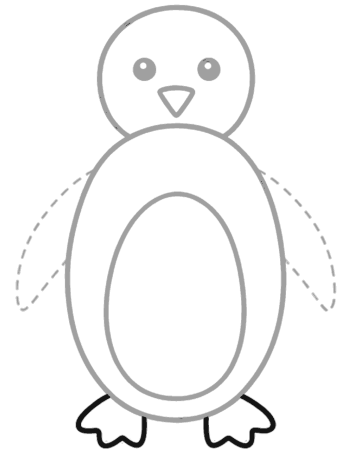

4. Fill in the eyes

5. Add the beak

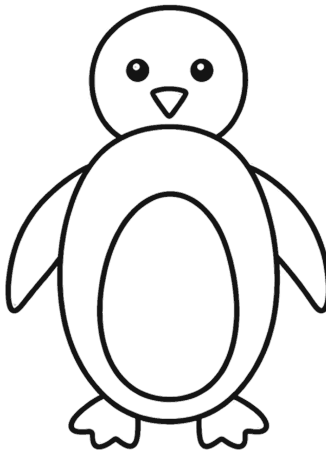

6. Draw the feet

7. Add the flippers

8. Trace and rub out

How to Draw a Penguin

1. Draw the body

Draw a tall egg shape for the penguin's body. Make the top a little narrower than the middle.

2. Add the tummy

Draw a smaller tall oval inside the body for the penguin's tummy. Leave an even space around it.

3. Draw the head

Draw a round head above the body. Leave a small gap where the head meets the body curve.

4. Fill in the eyes

Draw two small round eyes on the head. Leave a tiny white dot in each one for a shine.

5. Add the beak

Draw a small upside down triangle shape under the eyes for the beak. Round the corners a little so it looks soft.

6. Draw the feet

Draw two webbed feet under the body. Each foot has a curved outer edge and little pointed bumps at the toes.

7. Add the flippers

Draw one long curved flipper on each side of the body. Each flipper starts near the shoulder, curves out, and comes back in with a pointed tip at the bottom.

8. Trace and rub out

Go over the whole penguin with darker lines. Then rub out the dotted guide lines you do not need.

Tips

- Keep the tummy oval centered inside the body.
- Draw the guide lines lightly so they are easy to rub out.
- Make both flippers start at about the same height.